all the laws passed by our Legislature might be disapproved by Congress. We have to a certain extent lodged in the people this veto power which was vested in Congress. Laws which are not subjected to the referendum are these pertaining to appropriaters, providing for the program of the prog public debt and the interest thereon, or the creation or funding of the same, the public schools and State institutions and local or special laws. For the referendum to be exercised petitions must be filed four months before the general election and must bear the signatures of not less than 10 per cent, of the voters in each of three-fourths of the counties of the State, and the signers must aggregate not less than 10 per cent, of all the election was arraigned in the Yorkville in the State. Then of course the rest of the state. Then of course the rest described in the election and an indictment returned in Scranton.

"Of course we had some filibustering at the convention, but it made no headway. It was a source of satisfaction to have the people of the State approve the result of the convention's work by a majority of more than 18,000 votes. I think there is no doubt that New Mexico will get into the Union before Arizona. There the business men have all been disappointed over the work of their convention. In New Mexico all the business men voted solidly for the Constitution.

"There is one region in the northern part of New Mexico that one of these days is going to be an Eden. At present it is next to inaccessible, the nearest railroad is going to be an Eden. At present it is next to inaccessible, the nearest railroad being some thirty miles away. It is the Taos Valley. It is 6,000 feet above sea level and is hemmed in on the north, east and south by the Sangre de Cristo range, about 9,000 feet high. Two railroads are talking of getting in there, but it will not be an easy task. The other side of the region is bordered by the Rio Grande, but the river there is not navigable and runs through a cañon 1,000 feet deep. The soil is made of lava ash and is very fertile. The region is thinly settled and some people who live there are putting in apples. The trouble is its inaccessibility in the matter of freight transportation. There are two fine public roads leading over them, but the cost of transportation is 40 cents per hundred pounds, at which rate hardly any product of the valley could barely show a profit."
